

Consultancy and training

For many years ANGA has been sharing with its customers its knowledge and experience in seal and pump engineering.

We organize training and provide technical consultancy concerning the selection, assembly and operation of mechanical seals. This is above all technical training for direct operation employees (maintenance function), repair workshops and engineering and technical staff.

ANGA also offers individual training thematically suited to your needs and requirements. Training can be held at the ANGA head office, in the customer's head office or in an agreed training and conference centre.

Our specialists from the Sales Department can provide you with detailed information concerning our training offer.
